Should energy storage be regulated in Japan?

Energy storage can provide solutions to these issues. Current Japanese laws and regulations do not adequately deal with energy storage, in particular the key question of whether energy storage systems should be regulated as a "utility" or "generator".

What happened to Japan's electricity price in 2022?

Spikes in international energy prices led to Japan's 2022 wholesale electricity price of 22.6 Yen (JPY)/kWh being double that of the average in the preceding 10 years (11.5 JPY/kWh from 2012-2021). Japan recently established a national target of net-zero GHG emissions by 2050 (GoJ, 2021a).

When will electric storage batteries be available in Japan?

Starting in fiscal 2026, the trade of this type of electricity stored in residential storage batteries will be facilitated in a dedicated market. Tesla has a head start here. It started building virtual power plant in Japan with its Powerwall batteries in 2021.

Will battery storage capacity increase in 2030?

Battery storage capacity grows to 1.5 GW in 2030 and 29 GW in 2035, to integrate more solar and wind generation. The steep increase in the battery storage deployment rate in 2030 is dependent on two factors:
